as suggested in para 7 - 11 of the F. Secy's note. There seems to be no objection to change sanctioned on the advances made to Panchayats. The condition of repayment is in a way indicated in the order in so far as the rates are fixed & no recovery realised by the Panchayat: no further specific condition, such as 'no of instalments for repayment & time for each instalment etc, seems possible under the circumstances as the Panchayats can pay only after they get the money. Regarding the third point raised by the Comptroller, about the competent authority competent to sanction such advances & hence minimum amount in each case, the Deputy Comr. seems to be the best person competent to decide the two points. Proposals for change or revision are sanctioned by Govt only on the
